New York, NY 10112

The New York City Campaign Finance Board is a nonpartisan, independent city agency that enhances the role of New York City residents in elections. The CFB's mission is to increase voter participation and awareness, provide campaign finance information to the public, enable more citizens to run for office, strengthen the role of small contributors, and reduce the potential for actual or perceived corruption.

The CFB is charged with administering the mandatory Debate Program, in concert with various civic and media partners who sponsor the debates. It is a cornerstone of the CFB's voter education efforts and provides New Yorkers with an opportunity to compare candidates side by side as they discuss the important issues facing the city. The debates help ensure New Yorkers are well-informed as they head to the polls to cast their vote.

Candidates for citywide office who participate in the Campaign Finance Program and meet certain debate criteria must participate in debates prior to an election in which he or she is on the ballot. Candidates who opt out of the Campaign Finance Program may also be invited to join the debates at the discretion of the CFB and sponsoring organizations, provided the candidates meet the same criteria.

Office of Public Advocate

As the city's "ombudsman," or go-between, the job of the PUBLIC ADVOCATE includes monitoring the operation of the public information and service complaint programs of city agencies, and investigating, and trying to resolve complaints about many city services. In the mayor's absence, the public advocate acts as the mayor; in the case of a vacancy, the public advocate acts as mayor until a special election is held. The public advocate earns an annual salary of $165,000.

Candidates

Catherine Guerriero

As a mother, university professor, small business owner and athlete, Cathy Guerriero knows and loves New York, and will fight to keep our city great. As Public Advocate, she will work to keep New York a safe and affordable city where all New Yorkers from each of our five boroughs are treated with dignity and respect, where all people have an equal voice in our great city's future and where all children have access to quality education and resources they need to succeed in life.

Letitia James

Council Member Letitia “Tish” James was born and raised in Brooklyn. After graduating from Howard University, James began her career in public service, starting as a public defender in the Legal Aid Society. She later served as an Assistant Attorney General for New York State and was elected to the City Council in 2003 where she has been an outspoken advocate for social and economic justice. James has successfully preserved after-school programs, childcare slots, and affordable housing. She'll bring the same passion to the Public Advocate's Office.

Candidates

Reshma M. Saujani

Reshma Saujani is a progressive Democrat running to create opportunities for all New Yorkers and new pathways to the American Dream. A daughter of immigrant refugees, Reshma knows that City Hall and Albany have failed us. She is running to change that. Reshma is a proven fighter — especially for immigrants, women, children, and families. She will use her record of finding solutions to expand our middle class, strengthen our schools, and reform the harmful Stop and Frisk policy. Reshma will put results above words, and make our city a better place to live, work, and raise a family.

Daniel L. Squadron

Daniel Squadron is a lifelong New Yorker who lives with his wife and their son in Brooklyn. First elected to the State Senate in 2008, Daniel unseated a 30-year incumbent in a grassroots campaign for change and has gotten results as a progressive reformer.

Daniel has a proven track record of delivering results for everyday New Yorkers — fighting corruption in Albany, writing landmark new gun laws, and advocating for affordable housing, parks, and public transportation. He has a plan to make the Public Advocate’s office more effective for children, seniors, and regular families who need a voice in City Hall.

Co-hosts and Panelists

Melissa Russo is an expert in local policy and politics with unmatched sources and a reputation for being tough but fair. For 20 years, Melissa’s reporting has had an impact in New York City because of her keen understanding of the issues, her impartiality, and her deep concern for New Yorkers in need. She has extensive experience moderating debates and live policy discussions, serving as a questioner in CFB debates during the 2005 and 1997 election cycles. Melissa also has hosted many more informal debates as rotating host of NY1’s live, hour-long political talk show “Inside City Hall” from 1996-1998 and since then, on WNBC-TV’s public affairs programming.

David Ushery, an award-winning anchor and reporter, has been a member of the NBC 4 New York news team since 2003. He anchors the 6pm and 11pm weekend editions of “News 4 New York,” and is the host of “The Debrief with David Ushery.” The Debrief is a half-hour broadcast that provides viewers with a unique behind-the-scenes perspective through unscripted conversations with reporters throughout the region. The show was nominated for a 2011 Emmy Award.

Jorge Ramos Multiple Emmy Award-winning anchor and correspondent Jorge Ramos is the anchor of Telemundo Nueva York’s 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. newscasts. Ramos recently celebrated his 30th anniversary at Telemundo 47. In addition to anchoring, Jorge delivers high-profile reports on numerous topics for Noticiero Telemundo Nueva York, including the public affairs show “Enfoque.”

Michael Howard Saul is the City Hall reporter for The Wall Street Journal. During the past two decades, he has covered City Hall for three of the nation’s largest newspapers: the Dallas Morning News, the New York Daily News and the Journal. At the Daily News, he began covering Michael Bloomberg in June 2001 and later became the newspaper’s City Hall Bureau Chief. Most recently, at the Journal, he was the moderator at the newspaper’s inaugural Future of New York series of forums, leading a discussion with New York governors, past and present.
