

Comptroller

John Burnett (R, C, SC)

Greetings fellow New Yorkers. My name is John Burnett and I am running for New York City Comptroller. I'm a lifelong New Yorker — born in Brooklyn, raised in Queens and currently residing in Harlem. As Comptroller, I'll root out the hundreds of millions of dollars that the City wastes each year through fraud and inefficiencies. The City Comptroller doesn't just oversee the pension fund; but is the City's Chief Financial Officer with the power to audit. I'll use that power to clean things up.

You may ask how can I get it done? Well, I'm a government outsider with the guts to seriously promote government accountability and transparency. In the words of Shirley Chisolm, I am un-bought and un-bossed.

I'm asking New Yorkers in every community to hire me as their fiscal watchdog. I have the financial experience and academic credentials for this job, while my opponent does not. My Democratic opponent has repeatedly supported tax hikes — one of the things that have made New York the worst place for business growth in America.

As Comptroller, I'll be rolling out comprehensive plans to save New York millions in pension fund administrative costs while enhancing the overall investment returns to ensure that our retirees have the comfort that they deserve in their golden years.

With better fiscal management and vision, we can do better. I am offering New Yorkers the alternative they deserve and a chance to vote for someone that actually has the qualifications to serve as City Comptroller. Thank you for your time. Where experience counts, vote for John Burnett, the future New York City Comptroller.

Reprinted as supplied by the candidate. Participating in the Campaign Finance Program.