

Comptroller

Scott M. Stringer (D)

My name is Scott Stringer and I'm running for City Comptroller. Growing up in Washington Heights, I thought New York was the greatest place in the world. It wasn't always easy, but you knew that if you worked hard you could do anything. Too many families living in the five boroughs, no longer feel that way. The cost of everything is going up and it can be tough to find a job that pays enough. Middle class families who built this City are being priced out. That's got to stop. That's why I'm running for Comptroller. As the City's Chief Fiscal Officer, I'll be fighting everyday to protect your hard earned tax dollars. That means ensuring that when the City sets its budget priorities, it's for the things that help make the City work better for you — schools, healthcare, affordable housing. It means rooting out waste and abuse, so you can keep more of your money where it belongs: in your pocket. That's what I've been doing for the last twenty years. As Borough President, my office exposed major failures in forecasting student enrollment, spurring construction of badly needed schools. We found that 75% of elevators in public housing were failing inspections, and forced the city to make repairs. In the Assembly I took on my own party's leadership to fight for accountability in government. I'm proud of that and I will never stop fighting to make government more responsive to you. I love this City. It's the greatest in the world. But to keep it that way we've got to make sure middle class families can thrive here. That's what I'll be working on as your Comptroller. Join me and let's get to work.

Reprinted as supplied by the candidate. Participating in the Campaign Finance Program.